Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Lowe (5864580).

Lowe shows an ID managing system including a non-contact ID tag 108 that is attached to a component 200 and storing ID information about the component 200. Lowe additionally includes a tag information receiver (represented by the line between elements 44 and 208) provide in the component unit for receiving ID information from the Non-contact ID tag 108.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lowe as applied to claims 1 and 4 above, and further in view of the admitted prior art (hereafter referred to as APA).

In an analogous art, the APA discussed by the applicant on paragraph 6 of the instant specification, shows a controlled unit being a motor that includes a rotor and stator and transmits rotation information. The APA discussed motor requires ID information in order to transmit identified rotation information. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have used the Lowe system in order to provide ID information to the motor of the APA since it would preserve important system ID information in a cheaply manufactured tag element.

3. Claims 3 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lowe as applied to claims 1 and 4 above, and further in view of Casden (6285295).

In an analogous art, Casden teaches a remote controller that includes a set of function keys that is attached to a tag information receiving element providing ID information to the set of function keys. Casden and Lowe, however, fail to disclose a display connected to the remote controller, however the examiner takes official notice that displays in remote controllers are very common in the art for providing feedback to the user operating the remote controller. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have used the tag ID devices of Lower in a remote controller as suggested by Casden since such would provide remote controller with practical elements to provide memory for the remote controller.
